Gives Aid To Strikers.
Sometimes liver, kidney and bowels seem to go on a strike and refuse to work right. Then you need those pleasant little strike-breakers—Dr. King's New Life Pills—to give them natural aid and gently compel proper action. Excellent health soon follows. Try them. 25c at all Druggists.

Suffering.
This world would be a dreary monotone without the mountains and the lakes, the rivers and the valleys which have come through nature's great upheavals. The sufferings of earth make it the more glorious. Men are much like this in his own experience. The blessings of life have come in large measure because of the heart aches and the agonies of men and women. They have given of their life blood so that others might be enriched. This has been their crucifixion. But out of their affliction has come a new life—grown from the seed of the best that died in the old self. This has been their resurrection.—Charles Stelzle.

A Slope Traveled.
One of the broad slopes of Mont Guineux, France, is reported to have become detached from its foundations, and to have moved over a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile carrying with it the soil, meadows and woods, and covering up in its passage roads and bridges that stood in the way. A chestnut grove has traveled five hundred feet without suffering any apparent damage, but many small lakes have been formed by the damming of the waters.—Scientific American.

A Logical Conclusion.
Poor little Jamie had caught a bad cold and his fevered joints were unpleasantly stiff in consequence. "I think," he sighed, "that somebody must have put starch into the water of my bath."

PROHIBITION IN THE SOUTH

STATE-WIDE LAWS AGAINST SALE OF INTOXICANTS CAN NOT BE ENFORCED.

DEFIANCE OF THE DEALERS

Few "Dry Spots" in the Cities of Five States—Public Opinion Stronger Than Legislative Statutes—Moon shining Tremendously Increased—

Only in the small towns of the five state-wide prohibition commonwealths of the South do the prohibition laws work with any degree of success. Even in the small towns do "blind tigers" thrive. In the large cities the state-wide laws are as good as no laws, with the exception that in some of the cities, Atlanta, for instance, dives of the lowest sort are not permitted to run. Saloons for the sale of beer, real beer, are wide open day and night in the big cities of the state-wide prohibition states. In some of these saloons beer, ale and lager are sold exclusively. In others, liquors are sold as freely as if the saloons were licensed for their sale. Moon shining has increased tremendously; home drinking has increased; crime has increased, and the revenues of the cities have decreased tremendously. It is predicted that North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi will go back to local option in a few years. A Grit representative has gathered some intimate facts concerning the prohibition question in the South, which will be found in the following article:

LAUGHING AT LAWS.

[Written by Harvey E. Taylor.]
Atlanta, Ga.—Prohibition of the liquor traffic has failed utterly in the Southern states which have in the past few years adopted state-wide prohibition. Atlanta has, the past two years, developed into the greatest beer drinking city in the South. Savannah and Macon, in this state, make no pretense whatsoever in obeying the law which forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors. In North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi the same disregard of the state-wide prohibition laws may be found in greater or less degree. In Memphis saloons are running openly. In Atlanta beer saloons are making additional fortunes for the brewers of Milwaukee, Cincinnati and St. Louis. The making of moonshine whiskey has increased over 500 per cent in the states which are supposed to be "dry" and an inadequate force of revenue officers is totally unable to keep pace with the makers of illicit whiskey. The surplus of Georgia's great peach crop has been turned into peach brandy. The Government seized 1,000 gallons of this fiery liquor a few days ago. Some of the smaller cities of this state have become disgusted with the miserable near beer, and the authorities have intimated to the saloonkeepers not to sell the stuff any longer, but to give their patrons real beer. So great is the demand in the cities of Georgia for real beer that the outside brewers flood the cities with green brews, highly bilious concoctions, which are far from being as palatable as properly aged beer. Of course, "blind tigers" do a thriving business in selling liquors, and the liquors they handle are as green as the beer the brewers send in from other states. While, therefore, there is practical license to sell in Georgia, the people, the consumers, are getting for their money the worst possible beers and liquors.

Few "Dry" Spots.
In order to drive a few additional spikes into the beer drinkers of Atlanta, most of the bars run strong ales on draught, and a mixture of half beer and half ale is a favorite drink of those who desire rather speedy alcoholic exhilaration. In Augusta the same conditions prevail, the wholesalers of that city sending out thousands of gallons of whiskey weekly into other states. In addition to a great amount of liquor and beers sold by retailers. Legally "dry," all the large cities in Georgia are to all intents and purposes "wet." In Savannah liquors and mixed drinks made from liquors may be had at the most prominent bars in the city, which are running as openly as they ever ran before state-wide prohibition was visited upon Georgia. In Atlanta, outside of the clubs, the liquor traffic is handled by "blind tigers" or "bootleggers." Large quantities of it are handled, for detectives have found that great quantities of the stuff come into the city regularly to persons other than the managers of the clubs, which cases are permitted to keep the liquor for their members. In the white and colored bars in the Atlanta "tenderloin," the saloonkeepers have on hand nicely wrapped packages of bottled beer, which may be taken out to shady places by customers, although this is against the near beer law. In Memphis, Tenn., the liquor business is thriving, places for the sale of all sorts of alcoholic beverages keeping open all night, if the proprietors find it pays never to close their "booze" emporiums. The same may be said of Chattanooga, which once had an excellent excise law, and Nashville, which for a few months tried to obey the prohibition law, but which now has its wide-open saloons.

Defy the Laws.
In two years, therefore, large centers of population in five Southern states and wide stretches of sparsely populated country have, with one accord, grown defiant of the law, as it has been made by five different legislatures, the people of North Carolina being the only people of these five states to vote on the state-wide prohibition question. Within those two years, therefore, great retrogression in civic life has developed. Administrators of the law have become negligent; serious crimes have increased; cities and towns have lost millions of dollars in revenues; the morals of the states have become impaired; home drinking has been encouraged the result that many family tragedies have taken place; young men just coming of age have been trained to ignore the law; the ranks of the chain gangs have swollen, and political chaos has resulted in many sections of the South. In North Carolina, especially, negroes have become addicted to the use of cocaine since their supply of liquor has been cut off in the small towns. Many capital crimes have been the direct result of cocaine taking on the part of the negroes, whose regulation the whites have long had great difficulty in handling successfully. In all the large centers of population the "bad" negroes, the ones from whom it was hoped state-wide prohibition would deprive liquor, get as much now from the "blind tigers" as they formerly did from licensed saloons. Now, however, the alcoholic concoctions these "bad" negroes get is much worse than that which they used to get and fire their minds with thoughts of criminal violence. Some of these "bad negroes" have turned "bootleggers," selling spirits to darkies and charging for it mighty high prices.

Quenching Thirsts.

In all the large cities in the state-wide prohibition states, social clubs, in many instances, have become thoroughly social affairs. In Atlanta, dozens of men, who have furnished funds to start clubs, are now getting from 10 per cent to 25 per cent a month on their investments. Cards to these clubs are easy to obtain, any respectable white man coming to the city for a few days being able to get these liquor-privilege cards through the medium of hotel clerks. Commercial travelers coming to Atlanta are furnished these cards by their customers, so that to them the city of Atlanta is not "dry" as far as the getting of liquor is concerned. These clubs also do an extensive bottle business, their thousands of members obtaining their home supplies of liquors from these men from the saloon to the club, which, as things now are going is nothing more than an exalted saloon, restricted as to patronage. In the rooms of business blocks, in the corners of small stores, and in shacks in the negro and mill districts the "blind tigers" keep their stocks of liquors. "Bootleggers" drum up trade on the outside for these "blind tigers," which handle much of the green moonshine whiskey smuggled into the city. If a man, a stranger, stands 15 or 20 minutes on a corner in the business section of Peachtree street, it is not unusual for him to be approached by a "bootlegger" who volunteers to tell him where he can obtain a supply of whiskey. These men approach one day and night.

Of course, the state and government officials are on the track of the "bootleggers" and the moonshiners. However they make little impression on the ranks of these unlawful dealers and manufacturers, for they outnumber the officers more than 200 to one. The boss of one of the chain gangs said to me:

"We have quite a number of white men or the chain gangs building roads in this state. Most of them have been arrested and sentenced for selling liquor unlawfully. As things go, it's all right to sell liquor in Savannah, but all wrong to sell liquor in Atlanta. I, myself, like a drink of whiskey now and then, but I object to being classed as a criminal if I take a drop of toddy. This law can't stand. It was made by legislators who shoved bodily into office by women. If these women only understood how generally the law is violated, how the selling of vile, unclean liquors to 'bad' negroes endangers the safety of women in this state, they would not insist upon lumbering up the statute books with such absurd pieces of legislation as the unenforceable state-wide prohibition law. Beer drinking here is making the negroes lazy and impudent. They will hang around a saloon all day in order to get drunk on beer. They'll get drunk, however, if they have to spend all day and all night in the beer places. What is gained in the end, then?"

Strong Public Sentiment.

Many of the cities in the "dry" states are handling the liquor question on the principle that "public sentiment is stronger than the action of legislatures." In Macon, in Vicksburg, in Chattanooga, in Savannah, and in Memphis, in Asheville, in Atlanta, in Nashville, and in Augusta, public opinion is holding sway. In these cities the liquor dealers are laughing long and loudly at the laws made by over-zealous legislators. The liquor dealers and their patrons openly say they do not want prohibitive laws, state-wide laws, and they will not obey them. They openly declare they will make the violations of these laws so conspicuous, so scandalous, so brazen that the legislators will, in self-defense, and for their own self-respect, repeal the objectionable statutes. On the other hand, there are politicians in high official positions who smooth over the violations of the law and make the prohibitionists believe the law is being well enforced. Gov. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who is financially interested in the biggest beer-selling hotel in Atlanta, is one of these.

Diplomatic Menus.

An interesting collection has just been added to the museum in connection with the French ministry of foreign affairs. The collection is the gift of M. Jean Fabre, and it consists of menus of dinners and luncheons given by French diplomatic representatives abroad during the last 50 years. What a boon this will be to chefs if they are permitted to consult this collection, which is contained in 40 albums, and it is quite within the range of possibility that diplomats will not be above drawing inspiration from the books. We believe the Austrian emperor has a somewhat similar collection.—London Globe.

Futile Arguments.

There was once an orator, Themis, toiles, and as he reasoned a Colonel Boanerges in the audience buried a stone in the speaker. He took it up and showed it to the audience with the remark: "A really argument, but not convincing," and the arguments of some are like the stone of the fellow in the crowd.

RETREAT OF A PHILOSOPHER

Avignon, the City of Exiled Popes. Was the Home of John Stuart Mill.

Avignon, the city of the exiled popes, was on a Sunday, when a bust was unveiled in the gardens of the cottage of John Stuart Mill. It was at Avignon that the philosopher sojourned after his defeat at the polls at Westminster. It was there that he did much of the writing which has made his name immortal. There he spent the happiest seven years of his life after his marriage to Mrs. Taylor, and there he died. The French people delight to honor true greatness, and the people of Avignon are proud of their city's association with the son of the philosophic historian of India, the author of "Utilitarianism."

After Mrs. Mill's death Miss Helen Taylor, her stepdaughter, was Mill's constant companion at Avignon. There the philosopher wrote to his friends high encomiums of Miss Taylor—"I am in clover." She is described as the "architect and the master mason all in one" of the additions to the cottage, where she had designed the "herbarium" (for Mill was a keen botanist) and the "vibratory." Another attraction to Mill was the "semi-circular" as he termed the terraces going round two sides of the dwelling. It was in 1858 that Mill and his wife went to Avignon to stay for a year, but Mrs. Mill's sudden death changed her husband's plans, and for about fourteen years he passed his grief with his books, just leaving the grounds to visit his wife's grave, surrounded by "sombre cypresses." In this little earthy paradise he wrote that the faculty that enjoyment necessary to his existence which the house of commons did not offer.—London Globe.

DOLLAR AN ANCIENT WORD

Heard in the Language at Least 300 Years Before It Was Used in America.

The word "dollar" was in our language at least 300 years ago, for it is used by Shakespeare several times, says Harper's Weekly. It is supposed that the word was in use in London in the latter part of the sixteenth century, having been brought in by the North German merchants, who managed the trade on the Baltic and in Russia.

"Dollar" appeared first in an English dictionary in 1745. It is a borrowed word, being the German "thaler." The coins issued by the mint in Joachimsthal were called "Joachimsthalers." When other mints were established, the "Joachimsthalers" were dropped and the coins were called simply "thalers."

The dollar was adopted by congress as the unit of our currency on August 5, 1785. It was to contain 375.54 grains of pure silver; but when the mint was established, in 1792, the requirement was reduced to 371.25 grains of pure silver. The coinage of dollars began in 1794.

"Why do you want a left-handed apprentice?" asked the curious visitor.

"Because the girl who just went away was left-handed. She left a lot of unfinished work, and it will take another left-handed girl to finish it. Left-handed people begin work in the opposite direction from a right-handed sewer, and if a right-handed person attempts to finish it there is sure to be a muddle."

As the Chinese Make Matches.

The Japanese have developed the extensive manufacture of matches in China. There are factories at Tientsin, Peking, Hangchow, Shanghai and other places. The vicereys do not allow the erection of several factories in the same town, so that each factory has a kind of local monopoly. The factory at Hangchow employs 3,600 hands and produces fifty or sixty tons daily.

Too Bad.

Many a good deed has been spoiled by being done at the wrong time.

TO JUDGE MEN CORRECTLY

We Should Think of Each as He Is Rather Than as the World Sees Him.

It is worth our while to remember that the ear of all the Russias does not sit in royal state with a crown on his head all the time. No, he goes "home" betimes, just as do the men who work in shoe factories, or clerks in the stores, or who plow in the fields, and when the "chores" are done and the evening comes on, and the supper dishes are cleared away there comes to the castle, the same as to the cottage, "the children's hour," when he tumbles about on the floor with the little folks and plays "Indian," or some other childish game in which all can take part.

Every man has to be something more than the world knows him to be. The man whom the world knows as a great and reverend judge is only "my papa" to the little children who listen for his step on the walk or his knock at the door. In their homes all men are equal. The great man becomes a private citizen and the most humble teller, to the little ones depending on him for guidance and support, becomes a great man. "For a man's house is his castle," said the great lawmaker, Sir Edward Coke. Let this house be made of boards or bricks or granite walls, it is presumed to be equally as invulnerable before the law.

If we shall think of every man as he is rather than as the social or industrial implement the world sees fit to make of him, we shall judge men more correctly.—Christian Science Monitor.

Was.

One inevitable characteristic of modern war is, that it is associated throughout, in all particulars, with a vast and most irregular formation of commercial enterprise. There is no incentive to Mammon-worship so remarkable as that which it affords. The political economy of war is now one of its most commanding aspects.

Even apart from the fact that war suspends, ipso facto, every rule of public thrift, and tends to sap honesty itself in the use of the public treasury for which it makes such unbounded calls, it therefore is the greatest feeder of that lust of gold which we are told is the essence of commerce. When we had looked it was only its occasional besetting sin.

—W. E. Gladstone. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but that which thinks within me must think for ever; that which feels must feel: I am, and I can never cease to be.—James Montgomery.

Sheep as Burden Bearers.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European countries. The mountain paths among the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more sure footed than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers.

The load for each sheep is from 16 pounds to 20 pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village with the wool still growing and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the wool. The wool is then changed. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

Attractive Vase.

An effective centerpiece for the breakfast table is a flower vase of wood brown bamboo. They come in a variety of shapes. Inside are sheet iron or metal receptacles to hold the water. Most any flower shows to advantage against the dull brown of the bamboo. Many of these vases are loosely woven and dull red or green pottery peeks through the interstices. They may be found in any oriental store.

Vegetable Wool of Abyssinia. A variety of cotton referred to by the ancients who visited Abyssinia as "vegetable wool" is still grown there. The methods employed by the natives in cultivating, spinning and weaving are most primitive, and have been little improved in hundreds of years.

A Political Party.

"A political party," said Uncle Eben, "is sumptin' like de chuch choir. De man dat make de most noise in it ain't allus de one dat is most promotious of hahmony."

Averts Awful Tragedy.

Timely advice given Mrs. Willoughby, of Marengo, Wis. (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's new discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote, "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." Is the World Growing Better?

Many things are to prove thae it is. The way thousands art trying to help others is proof. Among them is Mrs. W. W. Gould, of Pittsfield, N. H. Finding good health by taking Electric Bitters, she now advises other sufferers, everywhere, to take them. "For years I suffered with stomach and kidney trouble," she writes. YOUR WEIGHT AND HEALTH

Better Be Over the Average When Young and Under When Old, Say Insurance Men.

At the annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Directors some facts were brought out in regard to the best build of men and women from the insurance man's point of view.

In the New York Life Insurance company efforts have been going on for many years to determine the exact influence of build on longevity, says the Medical Record. It is suggested that a mistake has been made in assuming that the average build of any age is the most favorable build that that age or the build from which it may be expected the most favorable mortality will be sustained.

For instance, figures show that at the age of twenty all risks from 24 per cent overweight to 10 per cent underweight are better than average risks. Does it not then seem probable that the point of most favorable build is about half way from 24 per cent overweight to 10 per cent underweight, or in the neighborhood of 7 per cent overweight? If this inference is correct the tables now used are too favorable to the underweights by about 7 per cent.

At age sixty, on the other hand, the super-standard risks begin at about 8 per cent overweight and extend to about 22 per cent underweight. The mean point between these extremes lies at about 7 per cent underweight and the conclusion appears evident that the present table based on average weights is too high by about 7 per cent. At the intermediate ages, 30 to 50, the mean point lies not at the zero but on the heavyweight side of the zero, at the age of thirty and at the lightweight side of the zero at the age of fifty, and only at the age of 40 is the table apparently correct.

WINCHESTER
Repeating Shotguns
USED IN THE U. S. ARMY.
The U. S. Army authorities know a gun; that is why, when they decided to equip some troops with repeating shotguns, they selected the Winchester in preference to all other makes. The experts of the U. S. Ordnance Board also know a gun; that's why, after submitting a Winchester Repeating Shotgun to all sorts of tests, they pronounced it safe, sure, strong and simple. If you want a shotgun—buy the one whose strength and reliability led the U. S. Army authorities to select it and the U. S. Ordnance Board to endorse it—that's the Winchester.

Must Have Imagination.

Life in the country may be one of the richest on earth, but it may also be one of the poorest. If the great book of nature be open to the eye of him who resides there, and illumined with the light of heaven, from his little knoll he can see and enjoy all the glory of the world; but if he sees in nature only the potato field which gives him food, then is this golden vein closed for him, and he himself stands like the potato plant, fast rooted in the earth.

LICKING VALLEY COURIER

Entered as second class matter April 7, 1910, at the post-office at West Liberty, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Issued Thursdays by The Morgan County Publishing Co. Incorporated.

Terms—One Dollar a year in advance

H. G. COTTLE, EDITOR.

All communications should be addressed to the Editor.

We are authorized to announce GEO. W. STACY, of Grassy Creek, as a candidate for the nomination for JAILER of Morgan County, subject to the action of the Democrat party.

We are authorized to announce JOHN PATRICK, (Assessor John) of Grassy Creek, as a candidate for the nomination for Assessor of Morgan county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce REV. W. H. LINDON of Insko, as a candidate for the nomination for Assessor of Morgan county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

This certainly ought to be a time of rejoicing for every Democrat, not only in Kentucky, but throughout the United States. The defeat of the Republican State ticket last Tuesday was so overwhelming, the victory of the Democrats so complete and so satisfactory and the effect thereof so far reaching that it makes glad the hearts of every one who believes in the doctrine of "Equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none." The personal popularity of Governor McCreary and the confidence which his previous official record inspired in the minds of the people had much to do with the victory: The vacillating policy of Judge O'Rear, his inconsistency and the fact that he refused to resign his seat on the Appellate Bench and drew $600 per month from the State of Kentucky during all the time he was making his campaign contributed largely toward his defeat. But the most potent factor and the one which, more than all others, encompassed the defeat of the Republican ticket and brought victory to the Democrats was the spirit of unrest which pervades the entire country; the galling yoke of oppression and misrule which has been fastened upon them by the Republican party; the disproportionate increase in the cost of living to the advance in wages; a tariff system which permits a few men to grow fabulously wealthy while millions, by their labor, are scarcely able to provide themselves and their families with the necessities of life and yet other millions are actually begging for bread. In speaking of the victory these things ought to be given due emphasis. The victory in Kentucky will have a great bearing upon the national election next year. There is not the slightest reason why the Democrats cannot elect a Congressman from the 10th district to succeed Mr. Langley, and if they act wisely in their choice of a nominee there is not the slightest doubt but that they will do it.

Give all factors, which helped to win our battle Tuesday, due credit, but emphasize the ones which will do the party the most good in the future.

Get your gun, Judge Stamper—fighting parson and conservator of the sacred rights of the Republican party in Kentucky! Get your fowling piece and make ready to hie yourself to Frankfort! You'll have a hell of a job on your hands shooting 'em out this time, but then you are on to your job, judging from your speech, but it's going to be a bigger one than it was when your crowd killed Governor Goebel.

Get your gun, parson, get ready!

The Mountain Press Association will convene at Hazel Green December 8th, and an elaborate program has been arranged for the occasion, which, if carried out and all the subjects discussed (which they unquestionably will be) by those to whom they are assigned, much good will result to the publishers in the mountains of Kentucky. Not only this but whatever helps the publisher of a newspaper helps the public as well, and the co-operation of the public is vitally necessary to the success of the infant association. The publishers are to be congratulated upon being permitted to meet in Hazel Green, the "Athens of Eastern Kentucky," where a royal welcome is sure to await them and where, as Bro. Cooper has aptly said, they will have a feast of reason and a flow of soul. We shall deem it a misfortune if for any reason we are unable to attend, and we hope every editor and publisher in the mountains will be there filled to the brim with practical thoughts and helpful suggestions.

Advantage of High Living.
Medical scientists have arrived at the conclusion, after various experiments, that the blood of persons living at a high altitude is much richer and therefore more capable of resisting disease germs than the blood of persons living near sea level. They also claim that lack of oxygen in the atmosphere at a great height is the cause of mountain sickness.

Ranges of Bow and Modern Gun.
In the days of mailed knights and battleaxes there was safety at a distance of 400 yards. That was about as far as the best archers could shoot an arrow. Needo, a famous archer under Charles I., states that the ordinary range of the bow was between 320 and 400 yards, though it is on record that one man was shot a distance of 463 yards with the wind. Compared with this is the latest naval gun with a range of fifteen miles.

Dust on the Family Bible.
Rev. Patrick Bradley, preaching upon the prevalent neglect of the bible, said: "Whilst I have walked through the different families of my congregation, I have found too little use made of the sacred volume which contains our right and title to a happy immortality. Many plead that they cannot have the bible always in their hands. True, but in many cases I find family bibles lying so unused that, with my finger, I could write damnation upon the covers of them! These things ought not to be."

In Glorious Italy.
It has been observed that in Italy the memory does not fade so soon as in some other countries. It is said that some historical associations, an event or modern, that may not be said to have gold under it.

CHARACTERS OUT OF SCRAPS

Thackeray's Personages Were Patch-works, Seldom to Be Recognized as Portraits of Actual Persons.

Thackeray rarely drew an out and out portrait, though he sometimes ventured on a recognizable caricature of people he detested. In a "Roundabout Paper" called "De Finibus" he asserts that he creates his personages out of "scraps, heel-taps, odds and ends of characters." Lady Anne Thackeray Ritchie corroborates this. "My father," she writes in answer to a private request for information, "scarcely ever put real characters into his books, though he, of course, found suggestions among the people with whom he was thrown. I have always thought there was something of himself as Warrington. Perhaps the serious part of his nature was vaguely drawn in that character. There was also a little likeness to his friend, Edward Fitzgerald, who always lived a very solitary life."

Warrington, indeed, may be taken as a typical instance of how Thackeray made up his own personages out of "odds and ends of characters." In the circumstances of his life Fitzgerald was the closest of all prototypes that have been suggested. Like Warrington, he had married beneath him, though not so far beneath as Warrington; he had found his wife utterly un congenial and had left her in comfortable circumstances to make his own way in London in poverty and obscurity. To add the final touch of pathos, Thackeray painted Warrington's abandoned wife as a bad woman, which Mrs. Fitzgerald was not, but only a very foolish and snobbish one. Besides the originals already suggested, James T. Field hints at a fourth in Barry Cornwall, and Gen. James Grant Wilson says Thackeray told a Philadelphia friend that Warrington was an English professor of Latin.—William S. Walsh, in Columbian.

Mechanical Lightning Calculator.
The clerical staffs of many of the big insurance companies have of late years been considerably reduced by the employment of mechanical calculators.

One of these, the invention of a German, is a compact little affair resembling a music box. It may be made to perform almost instantaneously the most portentous sums in addition, subtraction, multiplication by one or two factors, division, squaring and cubing. It is required, for instance, to multiply 581,975 by 924. The first factor is set by touching little knobs representing 581,975.

To multiply by the other factor you turn a handle four times, push a long slide one place and turn the handle twice, then push the slide another place onward and turn the handle nine times. The long multiplication is now done without the possibility of error so far as the machine is concerned and the dial shows 491,144,900. In the same mechanical way may be done all the other arithmetical processes.

Landon Poems Found.
The Walter Savage Landon exhibition at the London library is of great interest, comprising portraits, manuscripts and first editions from the important Landon collection of S. Wheel er, says the London Times.

The most interesting of the literary relics is a volume of manuscript poems and corrections by Landon which he himself described on a slip of paper (here preserved) as "sweepings from under the study table." The papers in this volume were taken from Landon's writing desk more than thirty years after his death.

Some of the poems are unpublished, and in other cases there are to be found the original drafts of lines which appeared in print in an altered form. Other documents include a will written by himself in which he bequeathed pictures to Robert Browning and Mrs. Lynn Linton.

To Clean Oil Paintings.

Didn't Read Daughter's Novel.
Sir Russell Reynolds, the late eminent physician, once related how he met Thackeray at dinner shortly after the publication of "The Story of Elizabeth," by his daughter, Lady Ritchie. "I told Thackeray how much I admired this charming novel. I am very glad," he replied, "but I can form no opinion of its merits, as I have not read it. 'Not read it!' I exclaimed in great surprise. 'No,' was the answer, 'I dared not. I love her too much!'"

No Vagabond Currents There.

A system for the protection of gas and water mains against vagabond currents is in use at Karlsruhe. This is formed by placing at suitable points electrodes in the ground and connecting them to the positive pole of a low tension source of electricity (an accumulator or dynamo), while the pipes to be protected are connected to the negative pole.

When All Will Be Rich.
Hop Sing is a Chinese laundryman with a cheerful, though somewhat unphilosophical. After bewailing the hard times and lack of business, he added, smilingly: "Bimeby everybody be rich, velly rich, bimeby." "How's that?" "Alla poor people got no money; no can eat. Then alla poor people die."

Easily Satisfied.
There is a bachelor who says that all he should ask in a wife would be a good temper, health, good understanding, agreeable phlegmony, figure, good complexion, domestic habits, resources of amusement, good spirits, conversation, talents, elegant manners—money! The unreasonableascal! Isn't there anything more he can think of?

Facts for Weak Women

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system. It cures female complaint right in the privacy of home. It makes unnecessary the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only; or, in cloth binding for 31 stamps.

Real Joy.
There's joy in the smile of an artless child. There's joy in a maiden's eye. There's joy in the spring when the song birds sing. There's joy in a lover's sigh. But such joys all pale and easily fail to come with the joyous thrill of the woman who knows that her newest clothes give her rivals a nervous chill.

All in One Second.
The way of writing modern romances—Albert rode with the speed of an arrow to the garden, sprang like the wind from his steed, climbed like a squirrel over the hedge, writhed like a snake through the pailings, flew like a hawk to the arbor, crept up to her all unseen, threw himself passionately at her feet, swore frantically that he would shoot himself; was, however, immediately heard, seated himself in blessed delight at her side, sank on her bosom, swam in a sea of bliss—all this was the work of a second!

All Have Artificial Legs.
Loss of a leg is essential to a job with a Chicago firm. All but two of its 102 employees in the factory and in the branch offices wear one or two artificial legs. The institution manufactures artificial limbs, and the employees leave their work to show the newly fitted patients how well they can walk, run and jump with the artificial article. Makers doubt if there ever was such a thing as a "cork leg"—in which "cork" entered in any considerable extent into the making of the limb. Some of them claim that the name was derived from one Cork, who made artificial legs early in the last century in New York. In the present day they are manufactured from English willow, covered with a thin parchment or enamel, or of wood and leather.

Whistles for the Deaf.
Every deaf person should carry a whistle. If the family make it an invariable rule for some one to appear in answer to the whistle the one afflicted with deafness will be pleased with the result. It will prevent useless calling and save many steps. It has been tried and found most satisfactory.

Fuel Economy Method.
Tests made by a French railroad of a device for heating water before it reaches the boiler by exhaust steam showed a fuel economy of more than twelve per cent.

A Discerning Person.
Mrs. Martin's new parlormaid, Susan, appears to be not only extremely well trained and all that a correct parlormaid should be but also a young woman of unusual penetration. When Mrs. Martin's acquaintance, Mrs. Davis, comes to call on afternoons, Susan ascends the stairs to her mistress's room and declares to that rather astonished lady that "Mrs. Davis, one of the gentry, is in the drawing room."

On the other hand when Mr. Smith, the book agent, or Mr. Jones, the piano tuner, rings the front door bell and sends up a card, Susan is not to be deceived, and announces, "Mr. Jones or Mr. Smith, not one of the gentry!" Mrs. Martin is at a loss to account for these distinctions.

Faith and Science.
Faith is not hostile to science. Want of faith expresses itself in fears and clamors. A large faith lifts inquiry into those heights where all things are seen in the light of divine unity.—Edward Hungerford.
